BEATTIE BUT AN INCIDENT.

Why is THE EVENING WORLD attacking Commisgiouer BEATTIE so bitterly? He is a fine fellow, and is doing the best he knows how with the aupropriation the city makes. You might do better business than taking a hard-working official and making a target of him.

This letter, one of the many received in The Everyo Worth's ornsade against New York's dirty streets, merits a reply. THE EVENTAG WORLD IS NOT attacking Mr. BEATTIE. Its fight is against the Street-Cleaning Department, which fails to do demand for clean streets. It has no feeling whatsoever against Mr. BEATTIE. He is but an incident in this battle for the any other official paid for work he does

That Mr. BEATTIE is a fine fellow has equal to the duties of the office that he has taken.

He is not "hard-working." Evening World reporters, who occupied five days In trying to find him, failed to discover that he did anything at all.

The "appropriation" is ample. If it were properly used there would be no just cause for complaint.

Mr. BEATTIE is to blame for not doing better, but there are others equally responsible. There was no good reason for his appointment. He knew nothing about cleaning streets, and his former training was not such that would fit him for such work. His first public office was that of stenographer in one of our Federal Courts then he was private secretary to the Cor. poration Counsel, then Deputy County Clerk under PATRICK KEENAN, after that Surveyor of the Port.

He was made Commissioner of Street Cleaning not through personal fitness. but purely by political influence, and those who appointed him are responsible for his shortcomings.

THE EVENING WORLD demands clean streets and does not consider Mr. Bear tions.

TRICKS IN A HOSPITAL.

There is in one of the wards of the Charity Hospital a male patient whose case is attracting some attention because do Just as well? of the peculiar proceedings of the doctors in attendance. Unable to pronounce what malady it is that afflicts the man, or to say, indeed, if he has a malady at all, the doctors are proceeding with a series intelligent hypothesis that the man is either a pretender or the victim of an of bananas. hallucination.

The patient complains of a gnawing at the stomach. He has been put under the influence of ether, and, on reviving, told that a nail had been removed from his in 1843, she was advertised as seron years of age, stomach. But he insists that the trouble as that was forty-eight years age, the dita must still remains. Now, according to published reports, it is proposed to experiment still further, with the view of convincing the patient that other disturbing elements have been removed from the organ he believes to be affected. If he administration of powerful emetics and several accompanying operations, the doctors will kindly consent to believe that something may be the matter with him and will proceed on the lines of real surgery.

The proceedings in this case cannot be too strongly denounced. They are a disgrace to the hospital service. They are pieces of boyish tomfoolery, which, as they may affect a human life most critically, have a very serious aspect. Such tricks do not come within the scope of legitimate hospital practice. They are the natural outcome of allowing free swing to young and inexperienced doctors, as is done in too many instances in the local hospitals. The case in question calls for rigid investigation and for the Townsk is not half so dard to beg for another. The late May it lies not as a to beg for himself.

The late May it lies at Hogby, and its sail services of a physician able to proceed with it in a proper manner. It is not a matter for trifling or " smart " work.

FIRST ICE-CREAM SODA. Strange to Say It Was Invented

Through Scarcity of Ice. The first person who conceived the idea of putting a spoonful of ice cream into a glass of soda water lives in Lycoming County, Pa., where he runs a little lrug store, says the Detroit Free Press.

Twenty years ago ice was very scarce and this man could not procure erough to keep his fountain gooled.
The only person in the village who had enough was a confectioner, and while the latter would sell no ice to the druggist he sold has a read along the server. old hun a great deal of ice-cream. People liked the scheme and the idea spread from one place to another until i now almost universal

Made a Bad Blunder While Trying to Be Pleasant. He hadn't heard her name when he was presented, but that made small difference to him, and he was going right along as fresh as a sea breeze in a storm, says the Detroit New Press " Ah," he said " did I understand you to say that Mr. Greenleigh was a relative

"Oh, no," she replied, "not a relative; merely a connection by marriage,"
"Well, of course," he went on, "I wasn't going to say anything about the old chump if he wasn't claive, but as he's only a connection by marriage Pin sure you will enture my poor opinion of him. By the way, what is the connection?" "Merchy by marriage," she replied smoothly.

Ves, so I understand; but how near is it?". Not so very near. He married my uncle's only niece."
